

We're aMAYSing

DEPARTMENT OF OPERATIONS AND SUPPLY CHAIN MANAGEMENT

DOCTORAL PROGRAM

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

The Ph.D. in Business Administration degree with operations and supply chain management as a major field of study is designed to prepare students for a rewarding academic career. The program has a strong research orientation; our graduates go on to pursue high-quality research at leading academic institutions.

NATIONAL RECOGNITION

RANKED

#4 Publishing in Journal of Operations Management, Production and Operations Management, Manufacturing & Services Operations Management for current faculty

RANKED

#2 All-Time Publishing in Production and Operations Management for current faculty

PROGRAM BENEFITS

- Generous monthly stipend, all PhD student tuition is covered, and students have access to a strong graduate student healthcare program.
- Faculty committed to one-on-one and team-based guidance enabling student success.
- Necessary computing resources are provided and ample funding is available for research and conference travel.
- Rigorous department and Mays PhD courses create a stimulating academic environment.

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

Supply Chain professors enjoy an excellent quality of life:

- Excellent starting salary (recent salaries well exceed $200,000 at peer schools)
- Intellectually stimulating work environments
- International travel opportunities
- Opportunities to teach tomorrow's leaders
- Leadership positions in academic and professional societies
- Additional earning opportunities through executive education, grants and consulting

AREAS OF EXCELLENCE

Mays supply chain faculty have conducted research in a variety of areas, including supply chain design and control, inventory management, production scheduling, product development, facility location, design of services, industrial contracting, logistics, manufacturing and supply-chain strategy, forecasting, retail operations, sustainable operations, behavioral operations management, healthcare operations management and information technology applications.

FINANCIAL PACKAGE

Doctoral student graduate assistantship provides a total package up to $40,000, including:

- Competitive stipend
- Additional summer support up to $4,400
- Medical/dental benefits
- No more than $500 in tuition expenses
- Additional grants and fellowships
- Generous funding for travel and research

APPLY ONLINE AT MAYS.TAMU.EDU

Dec. 1: Early application submission by all Ph.D. applicants, particularly those seeking funding opportunities, is strongly encouraged. Submitting by Dec. 1 allows applicants to be considered for all forms of financial support available; including university, Mays and department fellowships.

April 15 - May 25: Closing application begins as offers of admission are accepted.

May 26: Closing application to update application for the following year.