Research Interests

Business Policy and Strategy, International Management, Business and Government Relationships, Ethical and Social Implications of Business Strategy and Conduct, the Entrepreneurial Process and Character

Current Research Focus – Case study production related to entrepreneurial ventures

Dissertation Title: An Examination of the Institutional Relationships Between Governments and Business Interests.

Social Impact Statement

The combination of research, instruction, and practice that I bring together is targeted toward helping both students and practitioners learn to formulate better organizational strategies, craft and implement better entrepreneurial endeavors, and more fully understand the global environment that is affecting their efforts. The overarching goal of my work is to bring academic understanding to students and practitioners in a way that will foster the creation of new value in the world from both profit-seeking and not-for-profit entities. In a broad societal sense, my efforts are pointed toward promoting a healthy market, economic development, and improved standards of living as a consequence of teaching and applying academic knowledge and principles related to strategy formulation within organizations.
